DETAILED ACTION

Information Disclosure Statement

All of the IDS statements filed prior to 12/2006 have been considered and made of record.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by the German '306 patent (German). This patent discloses the use of a display in a crushing machine to advise the operator of crusher load.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 2-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over German. The limitations of these claims would have been obvious design choices only once the basic apparatus was known as in the German patent. For example, the particular parameter measured would be obvious based on several factors such as material being treated and desired maintenance.

Art Unit: 3725

Claims 1-8 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over the admitted prior art (APA) in view of the German patent, Siebert (column 2, last paragraph) or Duckinghaus et al (column 3, lines 25-35). APA is the apparatus disclosed in the first few pages of the specification. This apparatus includes a crusher having some type of display means for various operational parameters. In APA, the display used results in several problems such as slow operator response time and an inability to show exactly what's happening within the apparatus. Each of the secondary references solves these problems by using 'real time' displays on monitors. In order to prevent the aforementioned problems, it would have been obvious for one of ordinary skill in the art to modify APA by providing 'real time' displays, taught to be desirable by each of the secondary references. The remaining limitations of these claims would have been obvious design choices only once the basic apparatus was known as in the prior art combination. For example, the particular parameter measured would be obvious based on several factors such as material being treated and desired maintenance.
